

Canadian Longitudinal Study on Aging

Information Page for Proxy Information Provider

What is the Canadian Longitudinal Study on Aging (CLSA)?

The CLSA is a Canada-wide study that looks at health and aging over a 20-year period. People who are between the ages of 45 to 85 are being invited to take part. We will collect a wide range of information about people's health as they age, such as physical, emotional and social health and functioning, as well as the onset of health conditions and diseases. The information collected as part of the CLSA will be used by many researchers over the next four to five decades.

What is a proxy information provider?

With a longitudinal study there may come a time when a participant is not able to answer study questions due to physical or cognitive health reasons. Because of this, participants over 70 years of age are asked to provide the name of a proxy information provider. They are also asked to express their wishes about how they would like to be involved in the CLSA if they become unable, for any reason, to take part on their own.

A proxy information provider is someone who is best able to answer questions about the participant on their behalf i.e., someone who knows them well or sees them often, such as a family member, friend or care-giver.

What is my role as the proxy information provider?

- As the proxy information provider, you will be asked to answer the study questions on the participant's behalf, by telephone.

How can I get more information about the CLSA?

- You can choose to be sent regular updates about the study progress through electronic or mailed newsletters.
- Information about ongoing research, the research team, and general study results will be posted on the CLSA website (www.clsa-elcv.ca).
